Disarmament and the Individual Citizen

The outstanding question in world politics today is disarmament—the reaching of some international understanding which will put an end to the feverish race between nations to outdo each other in the raising and equipping of enormous armies, the construction of great navies, the inauguration of powerful aerial squadrons, and the development of chemicals and the sciences along channels of destruction, and, with a cessation of such unholy and savage activities bring about an enormous lessening of the burden of taxation and the devotion of national revenues to the improvement of the physical and educational well-being of the people.

Everybody is concerned in the consummation of such an international understanding, but the average man and woman nevertheless looks upon the problem of arriving at an agreement as being the sole business and responsibility of Governments and statesmen; in a word, of those for the time being in authority in their respective countries. As a result, the average man and woman takes only an academic interest in this outstanding question, and proceeds daily to think, speak and act in a manner which operates to make the realization of world disarmament extremely difficult.

With the defeat of Germany and the abdication of the Kaiser, the overthrow of Russian Czarism, the smash-up of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, and the breaking-up of the old Turkish Empire, the last remaining strongholds of old world militarism and autocracy came to an end. With the exception of Russia, which is still undergoing the birth pangs of its new regeneration, the leading nations of the world are now under a democratic form of government. That is to say, the people are themselves the rulers and the arbiters of their own national fate. They, and they alone, can definitely and permanently decide upon national policy. Governments are the creatures of the people, and are controlled, made and un-made by the votes of the people. To an ever increasing degree, too, the women have an equal voice with the men in determining the fate of Governments and the national policies of their homeland. If the people once make up their minds that there shall be disarmament, they will no longer pour out their hard won earnings to be used to supply machines of war wherewith to destroy their fellowmen, Governments will, because they must, obey.

There is, however, it must be admitted, a fighting instinct inborn in the whole human race. It cannot be wholly eradicated, nor would it be well for the race if it were. It is the instinct which leads the race to push ever onward and overcome seemingly insurmountable obstacles. It is the fighting instinct which makes for progress. But the time is long since past when that instinct should be so perverted as to result in a striving for mastery of others through the brutal, animal method of destruction—the employment of strong arm methods against the weak.

After all, what is one of the most fruitful sources of national ill-will, leading to the making of warlike preparations by one racial group of people against another? It is not to be found in the pin-pricking policy which so many people thoughtlessly indulge in at the expense of the people of another race, color or nationality? The people of one country make ridicule of the habits and customs of another. This is resented and a feeling of animosity and ill-will is engendered whereas a mutual recognition of each other's good qualities, which is just as easy of cultivation, would quickly develop a feeling of admiration.

The newspapers of a country quickly reflect the views and feelings of the people among whom they circulate. If there is a pin-pricking tendency among the people, it is not long before the press is engaged in it, and the sharp sayings of the press in one land are quickly seized upon by the press in another country, and soon a wordy warfare is on stirring up the passions and prejudices of people of one nation and people of another, and ever cultivating ill-feelings by raking up all the old quarrels and troubles of bygone ages. Visitors from a foreign country are chagrined and humiliated by careless remarks about their country, flag or people, and they return home entertaining among their cordial feelings towards the country in which such remarks are uttered. Thus, from comparatively trivial cause, there arise those national misconceptions and distrust of other peoples which, when some difference of opinion occurs between two countries, are quickly fanned into a flame and a condition of public opinion created which makes it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for the Governments of the opposing countries to make necessary compromises in order to reach an amicable settlement. And it is against just such contingencies that armaments are maintained.

The ordinary citizen can, therefore, do much to bring about world disarmament by merely keeping a close watch upon his tongue and by steadfastly refusing to indulge in, what is after all more or less senseless and certainly utterly futile, carping at and criticism of other nations, races and people.

ABLE TO DO HER WORK

After Long Suffering Mrs. Peasey Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto, Ont.—"I suffered with irregular menstruation, was weak and run down, could not eat and had headaches. The worst symptoms were dragging down pains, so bad sometimes I thought I would go mad. I seemed to be smothering. I was in this condition for two or three months and could not seem to work. I tried all kinds of medicines and had been treated by physicians but received no benefit. I found one of your booklets and felt inclined to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I received the best results from it and now I keep house and go out to work and am like a new woman. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to my friends and if they have any trouble like mine, I will tell them to get your book. Mrs. J. P. Peasey, 387 King St., Toronto, Ontario."

If you are one of those women who do not suffer for four or five years as Mrs. Peasey did, but profit by her experience and be restored to health.

Over Seven Thousand Enter Canada From U.S. in Six Months

A total of 7,110 persons entered Western Canada from the United States during the six months ending June 30, 1921. They brought with them personal wealth to the value of $2,445,904, and effects worth $702,453. Out of the total number of immigrants, 2,600 gave their occupations as agriculturists, and will engage in farming on the prairies. Of the total 4,892 were United States citizens, while the balance 2,218 were composed of Britishers, Frenchmen, Canadians and Scandinavians.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentery come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard, prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to banish them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels, and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Every dollar spent in your home town is a boost for the community.

For years I have never considered my stock of household remedies complete unless a bottle of Minard's Liniment was included. For burns, bruises, sprains, frostbites or chilblains it excels, and I know of no better remedy for a severe cold in the head, or that will give more immediate relief than to inhale through the nasal organ.

And as my supply of veterinary remedies is essential, as it is in very many instances proves its value. A recent experience in reclaiming what was supposed to be a lost section of a valuable cow, after having again demonstrated its great worth and promptness to recommend it in the highest terms to all who have a hand of cows, large or small. I find an safe in saying among all the patent medicines there none that covers as large a field of usefulness as does Minard's Liniment. A real trustworthiness for man or beast.

Farmer's Wife Pays Debt Of Gratitude By Relating Experience

"If I could say just what is in my heart to say about Tanlac, everybody who suffers like I did would go out and get a bottle at once," said Mrs. A. Pieper, wife of a well-known farmer living at Cottonwood, Sask.
"For years I had indigestion so bad that I couldn't eat a thing without suffering misery afterwards. Nothing agreed with me, and at times I was so bloated up with gas I would have awful smothering spells. My nerves were in a terrible state, and I was bothered a good deal with constipation. I also had violent headaches, and at nights slept so little I never felt like getting out of bed in the morning."

"Tanlac benefited me in every way and I feel like a different person now. I eat three hearty meals a day and never have a sign of indigestion. My headaches are gone and I sleep all night without waking, and when I get up in the mornings I am as bright and cheerful as I was when I was a girl. I feel I owe a deep debt of gratitude to Tanlac, and the only way I know how to repay it is to tell people about what it did for me."
Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Persistent Misfortune

Beginning with a plague of copra bugs, has followed the freighter West Naria of the Grace Line, which docked the other day at Brooklyn. When the ship was at Singapore on June 1st, she took on a cargo of copra, the dried kernel of the coconut, and with it the copra bugs. A day out on the voyage to Marseilles, according to the captain, the bugs began to make life unbearable for the crew. "The white woodwork on deck looked like it had been painted black," the captain said. "We tried to wash them off the boat, and we tried acid, but found they were vulnerable only to the rays of the sun. They would flee to the shady side of the ship, however, and we got dizzy turning the ship around so the sun would hit the bugs." At one of the ports a burglar entered the captain's cabin and took $110 in cash, a diamond pin, a watch and other valuable. And then when the ship reached Brooklyn Federal prohibition officers confiscated forty-seven bottles of booze which the sailors libelated they had kept to fight the bugs.

Harris made no more attempts to market his wheat that winter. His wife's health now became his first consideration, but he even had then been no such problem, experience had shown that nothing was to be gained by making the long and expensive trip to Emerson. The cost of subsistence of man and team on the way devoured all the proceeds of the wheat; indeed there were instances on record in the settlement where men who attempted such trips during the winter actually came back poorer than they left, while those who could show a gain of a bag of sugar, a sack of flour, or a box of groceries were considered fortunate indeed.

"What shall we eat?" said Harris to his wife, when, after a full discussion it was decided that no more grain could be marketed this spring.

"Oh, we shall not suffer," was her calm reply. "We have over five hundred bushels of wheat here."

"But we can't eat wheat!"

"I'm not so sure of that. I heard Mr. McCrae say that lots of families had wintered on wheat and corn. I don't think it is something of a delicacy. Even the best city families rarely have it, although they grow it here."

"More than flour and much easier to prepare."

Harris thrilled with joy over his wife's vivacity. The strange glow that oppressed her so much of late had cast him many a sleepless hour. "Besides," she continued, "we are well off to what some of them are. We have a good supply of vegetables, and one of the cows will milk most of the winter, and we have half a dozen laying hens. Then you will be able to shoot a rabbit now and again."

"Yes, well be all right," he agreed. "Perhaps I will get a day or two out at the lake. They say there is fine fishing all winter where some of the springs keep the ice open. And there's always a chance to pick off a deer."

So, in high spirits, they planned for their winter. There were long hours, and little diversion, and the desolation of bleak, snowbound country on every side, but through it all they kept up their courage and their hopefulness. Many a night they lay awake, wondering from which John, when he felt she was applying herself too closely, beguiled her to a game of checkers or an hour with one of their few but valued books. To supplement their reading matter Mrs. Morrison sent over her little library, which consisted of "The Life of David Livingstone," and a bound number of "The Gospel Tribune."

And there were frequent visits and long evenings spent about a cozy fire, when the Morrions, or the Grants, or the Riles dropped in to while away the time. The little red house was warm and snug, and as the men played checkers while the women sewed, what cared the pioneers for the snow and the cold and the wind whistling across the plains?

At last came the crisis. At four in the afternoon Harris kissed his wife an affectionate farewell, hitched his horses to the sleigh, and started out post haste for Plainville. The sun, hanging low to the western horizon, was banded by a great ring of yellow and gold, bulging into two half reflected glows at either side. A ground-drift of snow whipped keenly across the hard crust, and the north-west wind had a nip to it, but overhead the sky was clear and the blue amazingly deep. Harris drove by way of the Morrions, where a few low words sent Tom to the stable at a trot to hitch his own team, while the good wife bustled about in the "room," almost overwhelmed with the importance of her mission.

"I will go for the doctor, Jack, and you go back and take the wife with you," was Morrison's kindly offer, but Harris would not agree. It was dark by this time, and he felt that he could trust no one else to make the journey to Plainville. Besides, there was more than a chance that Dr. Blair might be incapable, and in that case it meant a drive of thirty miles farther.

"It's good of you, Morrison," he said, "but you are more used to your wife's bidding than I am, and you can be of good service there, if you will." And without waiting to argue he sprang into his sleigh again and was whipping his team into the darkness.

Dr. Blair, when at home, was to be found at the stopping-place. Harris tied his team at the door and went in, shaking the snow and frost from his

TELLS HOW CATARRH IS DESTROYED QUICKLY

Catarrh sufferers, meaning those with colds, sore throat, bronchitis, trouble, etc., can all be fixed up right at home by inhaling "Catarrhose." In using Catarrhose you don't take medicine into the stomach—you just breathe a healing piney vapor direct to the throat and the greatest antiseptics are thus sent to every spot where trouble exists. Colds and germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed, nature is given a chance and the disease ends quickly. Colds and throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapor of Catarrhose is breathed—energizing and coughing cease at once, because irritation is removed. great-coat. The air inside was close and stifling with smoke, not unadorned with stronger fumes. A much-smoked oil lamp, hung by a wall-bracket, cast certain sickly light through the thick air, and was supplemented in its illumination by rays from the door of a capacious stove which stood in the center of the room, and about which half a dozen men were sitting.

"Night, Harris," said the landlord, who had a speaking acquaintance with every settler within twenty miles. "We haven't had a bit of snow yet. Yell have a bite supper, an' stable the team."

"No, Hank, not tonight, thanking you the same. But I'm after Dr. Blair, and I'm in a hurry. Is he here, and—is he fit?" There was an anxiety in his last words that did not escape the host.

"Nothin' serious, I hope? Frost, or something?" Then, without waiting for reply, he continued: "Yea, doctor's here. Upstairs, bed to the right as ye go up. Just got in a little back. As for a-die-in, I'm out an' judge for yourself."

Harris lost no time in scaling the ladder which led to the upper level of the building. It was a garret—nothing better—where the cold stars looked through knotholes in the poplar shingles, and the ends of the shingle-nails were tipped with frost. Another wall-lamp burned uncertainly by, flickering in the wind that whistled through the cracks in the eaves, and by its light Harris found "the bed to the right." The form of a man lay diagonally across it, face downwards, with arms extended above the head, and so still that Harris paused for a moment in a strange alarm. Then he slipped his hand on the doctor's neck and found it warm.

"Come, Doctor," he said, "I want you with me." But the sleeping man answered with not so much as a groan.

"Come, Dr. Blair," Harris repeated, shaking him soundly. "I want you to go home with me." He might have been speaking to the dead.

In sudden exasperation he seized the doctor by the shoulders, and with one heave of his mighty arms set him upright on the floor and shook him vigorously.

Dr. Blair opened his eyes and blinked uncertainly at the light. "Whatche doing, Harris," he said at length, and the recognition brought a little smile to his face. "Sno use... Sno use... Sno use."

But Harris was desperate. "Now I'm not going to fool with you," he said. "You get up and come with me, or I'll take you. Which is it?"

But the doctor only mumbled "Sno use" and fell heavily back. Throwing open his coat to get free motion for his arms, Harris in a moment wrapped the sleeping man in a couple of blankets from the bed, threw him over his shoulder, carried him down the rickety ladder, and deposited him, none too gently, in the sleigh. There was a mild cheer from the men about the stove over these heroic measures, and one of them thoughtfully threw the doctor's satchel into the sleigh. The next moment all was lost in the darkness.

Harris drove for an hour, watching the trail keenly in the whitish mist of the winter's night, and urging the horses to the limit of their exertions. He had almost forgotten his passenger when he felt a stir in the bottom of the sleigh. Looking down closely he found the doctor fumbling in his coat, and he thought struck him that it might be needed, and he put it into his own pocket.

The doctor struggled to his feet. "Say, Harris, you're friend or mine, but don't take too many liberties, see? 'Sno use tryin' without it. Just give me that bottle now, or I'll get out and go home."

Harris was so pleased at the signs of returning coherence that he could have hugged the doctor, but he only said, "You've had enough for tonight. And you won't get out, because if you try to I'll knock you senseless in the bottom of the sleigh."

Then the doctor changed his tactics. He threw his arms about Harris's neck, and genuine tears coursed down his cheeks.

"Say, Harris, you don't know anything about it. You don't know what I'm up against. Just get in from Wakopa today, and I haven't had any close off for week. 'S right! I tell you, Harris, you don't know... Oh, I know I'm a fool—yes, don't let me. But th' engineer knows it too when he ties down th' safety valve 't make th' grade. Dosh it jush th' same. Thash jus' like me. Come on, Harris, hand it over. I got 't have it, or I can't make the grade."

"Well, you'll make the grade first tonight," said Harris.

After that the doctor remained silent for some time. Then suddenly he demanded: "Shay, Harris, where you takin' me home?"

"I'm taking you home."

"Homer! What home? I got no home, jush."

"I'm taking you to my home."

"Win for? You're all right. I guess th' doctor's right."

"That's why I came for you."

"Well, why the devil didn't you say so. Here, give me that whip. Harris, I know the road I'm taking arguing for?"

"I didn't waste much. The argument was mostly on your side."

"Harris," said the doctor, after a long silence, "you think I'm a fool. I don't right. It isn't as though I didn't know. I know the road I'm going, and the end thereof... And yet, in a pinch, I can pull myself together. I'm all right now. But it'll get me again as soon as this is over. Any good I am, any good I do, is just a bit of salvage out of the wreck. The wreck—yes, it's a good word that—wreck."

Just as the dawn was breaking he knelt beside her. Her eyes were very large and quiet, and her face was white and still. But she raised one pale hand, and the thin fingers fondled in his hair. She drew his face very close to her, and his silent tears stood in his eyes.

"We will call him Allan," he said. (To be continued)

Turning The Corner

Indications Point to Return of Normal Business Conditions

"Orders are coming in steadily and in increasing numbers," says A. E. Staley, of Decatur.

"We have anxiously passed the worst," said E. H. Gary, head of the United States Steel corporation, in commenting on the poor showing made in the last quarter's report of the profits of that business.

Textile mills are beginning to run steadily in the south and east. One great cotton mill in Massachusetts put its spring fabric samples on view one day last week, and within three days the output of the mill for the entire season was taken by the wholesalers.

The signs are now really right. Foolish optimism is one of the most foolish of all business mistakes. The man who fools himself is the most badly fooled man in the list.

But with a stabilization of values which has come within the last few weeks, there has come also the sounder business foundations, the higher productiveness of labor, the more careful and efficient management of affairs, so that the forward step which is taken now will be held. Gains now made are real, not imaginary or visionary, and they will be made greater as conditions continue to improve.

Indications are multiplying that while the country is far from back to the normal business prosperity, the upturn is gradually being made.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. Wreck Of Giant Dirigible A Most Terrible Mishap

Airship Collapsed When Flying a Thousand Feet Over City of Hull.

Hull, England.—Seventeen officers and men of the United States Navy, and twenty-seven officers and men of the British Navy, met death in the collapse of the great dirigible ZR-2, over the city of Hull.

Every one of the United States men on board the ill-fated craft perished, as far as could be ascertained.

Only five of the 40 who were making the trip in the dirigible prior to the vessel being turned over to the United States Navy, are known to have been saved.

The United States officers who started the trip include Commander Louis H. Masfield, Washington; Lieut.-Commander Emory Coll, Marietta, Ohio; Lieut. Henry W. Hoyt, Clearwater, Fla.; Lieut. Marcus H. Esterley, Washington; Lieut.-Commander Valentine N. Bieg, Brynmawr, Ia., and Lieut. Charles G. Little, Newburyport, Mass.

The British losses include the famous air veteran, Brig.-Gen. E. M. Maitland, Lieut. A. H. Swann, Lieut. L. C. Little, Lieut. R. S. Montague, Flight Lieut. Thomas, and all the other officers on board, except Lieut. Wann, the commander of the ZR-2.

Starting from Howden, Tuesday morning on a test flight to Fulham, the big airship had been about for 34 hours, at times in bad weather, and was returning to Fulham aerodrome at the time of the disaster, which constitutes the most terrible of its kind in peace times. The dirigible had been purchased by the United States from Great Britain.

While flying at about 1,000 feet over Hull, spectators saw the ZR-2 suddenly seemingly buckle amidships and plunge downward over the city and into the Humber River. One theory of the cause of the disaster is that while the ship's rudders were being tested, the giant craft took a sharp turn, which caused her to buckle, and that the explosion of a gasoline tank completed the tragedy of the air. The actual cause, however, never may be known. A rumor has been afloat for several days that the ZR-2 was structurally weak, but this was stoutly denied by all authorities.

As West Grows So Will East

Heavy Load of Taxation Carried By Small Population.

Every new settler in the Canadian West means at least one new job for someone in the Canadian East. Those who fear that an immigration campaign that would bring in settlers might add to the unemployment in Eastern Cities should bear this truth in mind. One in the West means—at least—one in the East.

The present immigration policy tends to ADD TO rather than subtract from the total of the unemployed in Canada. At present a small Western population is bearing the whole cost of the railways, telegraphs, Government and other public services in the West. It is admittedly a heavy load. Though these costs are reduced to a rock bottom minimum, they take from the Western farmer nevertheless, a comparatively large share of his total earnings. Sometimes, in bad crop years, he tends to become discouraged; he may even—in isolated cases—abandon his farm. And when he does, another idle man must also be reported in the East.

But with more immigrants, more settlers, more farms, these overhead costs in the West are reduced. Ten people are paying the bill instead of five. A poor crop does not matter so much. Then costs grow lighter in the only way costs can be lightened. Their numbers increase. Then by purchasing power expands. And there is more employment in the East.

The ban on immigration is a step towards greater unemployment—not less. This cannot be too strongly emphasized.

Congestion Of Fruit In Okanagan

Season is Earlier and Prices are Lower.

Vernon, B.C.—With a lack of orders from the prairie trade, the early fruit harvest in the Okanagan has resulted in a congestion of fruit awaiting shipment. The season is at least two weeks earlier this year in the fruit belt, and the bulk of the orders are not coming yet, probably because housewives have not got down to procuring. Prices, however, are lower this season and great activity at shipping warehouses is looked for in a very short time.

First Car of Wheat Arrives at Calgary

Shipped From Vernon and Graded No. 2 Northern

Calgary.—The first carload of this season's spring wheat has arrived in Calgary. It was shipped by J. S. Galbraith and Sons, of Vernon, B.C., and consigned to Willard Cumming and Co. It graded No. 2 Northern, and was sold at the Winnipeg cash close price of $1.77 1/2. It is stated that there are about 100,000 bushels of wheat this year in the Vernon district. Most of this wheat will find its way to Europe by way of the Panama canal.

Steamboating On Saskatchewan River In The Late Seventies

By O-G-E-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyright)

The Hudson's Bay Company had with much energy and considerable expenditure placed two steamers on Lake Winnipeg and several boats on the river above the Grand Rapids, and as this system was fairly successful for transportation of freight, it gradually replaced the Red River cart transport. Occasionally one of the river boats would reach Edmonton; twice I think in one season was the record of the Nor-West, which, by the way, was the most successful craft of them all, carrying two hundred tons on an exceedingly light draft of water.

American captains and mates from the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers were employed exclusively, but our own natives speedily took to piloting and some of them became experts. The crews were all Indians, chiefly drawn from the Pas and Grand Rapids but a few plain Indians from above Prince Albert would occasionally engage for a trip or two.

I was receiving and shipping freight in the summer of 1877 at Grand Rapids (Mr. Alex. Matheson, transport manager), and when loading the Nor-West on one occasion I noted the big fat Yankee mate who was standing on the deck at the gangway singing a rough chantee song to the Indians passing him heavily loaded from one to two hundred pounds a man being the general load. Occasionally, to hurry matters, he would kick an Indian in the posterior while passing, and break forth into, "Come aboard! Come aboard! You sons of—"

"—Come a running!", and so on. "Amongst the Indians was a wild-looking big chap who hailed from Fort Pitt, with a long plait of jet black hair hanging to his waist, wearing a broad belt of parchment buffalo hide studded with brass tacks, and a big scalping knife, the sheath of which was decorated in the same way. His whole costume consisted of a cotton shirt, a pair of cloth leggings and a breechcloth. I saw this Indian's eyes flash as the mate was doing his kicking stunt, and thought he looked dangerous, so walking down the gangway I tapped Mr. Mate on the shoulder and warned him that this was not a crew of southern niggers, but red Indians, and dangerous men to monkey with. His reply was a stream of profanity. Let me attend to the freight checking and he would bustle the — and so on. I returned to the warehouse and kept my eye on the mate. The big Pitt Indian had a heavy load placed on his shoulders, and down the gangway he went with his shirt bustling in the breeze. He received a tremendous kick behind, and in an instant Mr. Mate was on his back and the Indian furiously stabbing him. Several of us rushed to the rescue, and it took us all our time to hold the savage, who was in a mad fury, yelling that he had never been insulted before and only death could wipe out the stain. We noted some blood on the knife and thought it was all up with the mate, but fortunately he had managed to twist his body and dodge the knife and was only bleeding from scratches. Never was a man so changed. He was too scared to go back to his duty, as he felt certain either his opponent or the other Indians would scalp him, and we finally had to ship him into Fort Garry by the lake boat. Gradually the Yankee mates were done away with and our steady Scotchmen replaced them. These, though slower, had the faculty of getting on well with the natives.

Indians dislike profanity, and the Cree, whose language is generally understood throughout the north, have no swear words in their vocabulary. The captain of the Northcoast that summer was an artist in many strange oaths, and when these failed him in moments of emergency, down went his hat on the deck and on it he jumped with both feet. His desperate language had made trouble on several occasions, and he was warned to guard his speech. We had just loaded the Northcoast with 160 tons of freight for Prince Albert, working day and night as usual at the depot, especially as the water was steadily falling in the Upper River, and away she went. On the evening of next day arrived a canoe with a letter from the captain stating he was tied up with a strike and all his crew on shore. The chief asked me to go up at once and try and settle the difference (as I had managed to do on other occasions), so within half an hour I was on my way up the river with the Indian and tank canoe, and a heavy paddle ahead of us. The scene of the strike was at Chemulawin at the west end of Cedar Lake, and fortunately it being calm, we were able to make the long traverse safely and finally reached the steamer.

Captain — could hardly articulate for rage and every word was an oath. The poor beggar did not seem able to help it. I noted the men all sitting and smoking on the bank and grinning at the boss' discomfiture. I coaxed him into the cabin and told him the situation was a serious one and he was liable to lose his job if he did not cool down. Well, he was helpless, so asked what I would advise and I gave him this ultimatum. (To be continued)

Tribute To Late

Sir Sam Hughes

Parliamentarians Join in Sorrow Over Ex-Minister's Death

Ottawa.—Parliamentarians and public men from the Prime Minister down have joined in expressing their sorrow at the passing of Sir Sam Hughes, for years one of Canada's outstanding figures in political and military life. Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, the premier, paid the following tribute:

"A truly remarkable man has passed from us in the death of Sir Sam Hughes. His mind was alert and well informed. His heart was a dynamo of energy. Fear was something he knew nothing at all about; indeed, courage was his own mastering characteristic. It dominated his other faculties and directed his career."

"That he has done much for Canada and for the Empire he loved, no one would dare to doubt. At a critical time, his equipment of talent and experience and his extraordinary personality contributed a vast service to this country for which all are grateful, and the memory of which will live as long as our history is read."

London.—Premier William Hughes, of Australia, has left London on his homeward journey. He will spend a week in France and will present an Australian flag to the city of Amiens and will also unveil a cross in honor of Australian soldiers who fell at Villers-Bretonneux in 1918.

In conversing with Reuters correspondent, the Australian premier was unable to say whether he would return to the old country before long.

Hon. Mr. Sastri, who is the Indian delegate to the Imperial Conference, left London on the same train with Mr. Hughes, going to Geneva to attend the meeting of the League of Nations.

G.W.V.A. Asking Government to Stop Influx of Booklets.

Ottawa.—That large quantities of German booklets, containing insulting references to Great Britain and the other allied nations, were being rushed into Canada, and that the practice must cease immediately, were the opinions expressed by high officials of the Dominion Command of the Great War Veterans' Association. These booklets, it was alleged, were being received by persons in positions of authority and without the consent of the recipients. C. G. MacNeil, secretary of the Dominion Command, G. W. V.A., is taking the matter up with the government, and has forwarded a letter to the secretary of state asking for speedy action in terminating the influx of these pamphlets.

Indian Natives Riot

Seditious Agitators Cause Open Rebellion in Malabar District.

Bombay.—A grave situation has arisen in the Malabar district, on the west coast of British India, where seditious agitators have been working on the religious fanaticism of the ignorant natives.

Their activities have resulted in serious mass rioting, bloodshed and destruction of property. Military forces have fired upon rioters, causing many casualties. Railway lines have been cut. Most offices have been robbed, and mob law is almost supreme in several small towns. One village, surrounded by a mob, has been repeatedly making despairing calls for help. Military reinforcements have arrived at Bangalore, capital of the district of Mysore.

A proclamation has been issued by the British officer commanding troops in the Malabar area. It refers to "open rebellion" prevailing in the district on North Honani, 38 miles southeast of Calicut. Several murders have occurred, the victims including a military officer and a superintendent of police.

Russia May Have To Refuse Relief

Soviet Will Not Recognize Debts of Former Regime

London.—Russia will be compelled to decline British and French famine aid, says the Pravda of Moscow, because these countries have agreed to assist only on condition that the Soviet Government recognize the debts of the former Russian regime amounting to several billion gold roubles. The Pravda, which is quoted in a Reuters despatch from Riga, declares the Soviet Government would prefer to purchase the necessary food itself at a cost of 100,000,000 roubles rather than pay even the interest on these debts amounting to about 500,000,000 roubles.

The Most Tragical Fraud Ever Imposed Upon Any Nation

Millions are perishing from hunger and its offspring, pestilence, in Russia, and the sympathies of the world are aroused by the kinship of suffering. Russia, which has endured the horrors of war, has been wrung by revolution, and has seen its Government displaced by a rule of incompetence and corruption, now faces starvation.

Russia, yesterday, under Czarist regime, was one of the great granaries of the world today, under Lenin and Trotsky, the bins are rotting and the storehouses are bare. The Bolshevik leaders are blaming the drought and the extreme heat for the famine, and often made the scapegoat of man's incompetence. The foundations of Russia's sufferings are not so readily shifted, for their basic cause lies in Bolshevism, the grossest and most tragic fraud that has ever been imposed upon any people.

It is no new thing to hear Lenin and his partners declaim—about the woes of Russia, but this time Bolshevism cannot blame the blockade nor the machinations of Capitalistic England. It is, indeed, to the capitalists' countries that Russia today turns her supplicant gaze. The aid of the despotic Czar is invoked to placate the foreign nations, while she has waged against and slandered, and the machinery of the discredited Czarist rule is refurbished to gain sympathy—and dollars.

The serfs of the towns, the factory slaves, who were forced to walk and talk and eat by card, grew faint with lack of nourishment, and lost the moral fibre that in other days would have spurred them to resist their autocrat. But the peasant, the world over, knows but one tyranny—the tyranny of the soil. He might give the semblance of obedience when he heard the crack of the master's whip, but Lenin found the lessons learned in Berlin were as false as the masters who taught them.

Moscow has kept its heel upon the factory workers, but Lenin was forced some months ago to accept the alternative of the overthrow of his rule or the substantial modification of his confiscatory land measures, and he was world-wise enough to take the latter course.

Lenin could absorb a thousand creeds as many German philosophers, he might set up Marx as his God, but sooner or later he was bound to be brought up against the dead wall of truth—that "man will work only for a reward."

Today, when Bolshevism looks around at the empty barns, the full realization of this basic fact of all economies is brought home. The peasants of Russia have only seen for their own needs. They have rebelled against the Communism that Lenin sought to foist upon them. The dictator's eleven-hour repentance came too late.

Still the full tale of Bolshevism's incompetence is not yet told. It is increased. Capitalistic countries finding themselves short of any staples through drought or from causes that have set up an unnatural condition have been able by their own efforts and through their despised but elastic system, to obtain needed supplies from sister nations. They have developed their system of international bazaar and trade and have established their machinery of distribution. Not so with Communism. It must depend upon its own resources. Communists are sometimes apt to forget that if their followers are to enjoy all the profits and prices of years of prosperity they must be content to suffer the pangs and the losses of the lean days. If the Communists are to be a self-sustaining close corporation they cannot fairly appeal to Capitalism when their system breaks down.

Lenin and his associates have today but one basis of appeal to the nations that they have fought and killed—the basis of human sympathy. They can come as supplicants asking for bread for their children and the poor dupes whom Moscow has so shamefully deceived.

Their plea, indeed, would come with better grace if they would doff their clownish garb and the black masks of armed robbers and set to work to build up a new Russia, not on the threadbare tenets of a German-made philosophy, but on the foundations of common sense, experience and humanity.—Montreal Star.

Taber Irrigation Project System Expected to Pay for Itself in One Year

Paying for an irrigation system in one year is the unique experience of the Taber project, comprising 17,000 acres, just east of the irrigated area operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway. It cost sixteen dollars an acre to build the ditches and canals and conservative estimates of the average yield on the 13,000 acres under crop are twenty bushels to the acre, as against eight bushels on the dry land adjoining. This is the first year that the Taber project has been in operation.

Reassuring.

A pleasant run along the Alaska Route, a summer holiday by water from Vancouver brings one to Alert Bay at the north end of Vancouver Island.

At Alert Bay are to be seen the Totem Poles and Indian Community-Houses and the remains of the curious tree-burials, popular till recently with the Sitkwhas.

The Totems here have long since come to be regarded as one of the wonders of the world as inaccurate as in their way as Pyramid and Sphinx. And so it is little wonder that not a week goes by, in summer, but groups of visitors from every corner of the Globe may be seen landing here from both North and South-bound boats to view at close hand these "Sphinxes of America."

The world has always had wood-carvers. But never anywhere at any time carvings like unto these Pacific Coast Totems.

The outstanding "points" of the totem, which strike the visitor ashore for a few hours, are overwhelming.

One question:

Who carved them?
Who conceived the idea?
How old are they? etc.

We know it was not till very lately that the Coastal Indians possessed any steel tools. How then was it possible so long ago for them to cut so deep and clean a line as here gives decision to the totem-face?

All of these questions, and hundreds of others of like nature, after all these years since first the Totem was discovered by the white man, still remain without a definite answer it is more than half the charm of the Sphinx that she has never spoken. Indeed, half the charm and spell woven of the Totem lies in the stories that every visitor, beholding them, is free to weave to fancy, aided and guided by Tradition.

For though the written word may be wholly lacking "Tradition" has never anywhere woven prettier stories, clinging like graceful draperies trailing off in to these Northern mists, than about these wooden figures of the wonderful Totems, that wind around the shore-road at Alert Bay.

Here is that marvellous figure, the Thunder-Bird, with its eagle-head and binged beak that drops open through which entrance was made to the feast-hall in times of Potlatch.

An Agricultural Enemy

Immense Losses Incurred to the Farmer Through Weeds

Officials of the United States Department of Agriculture have estimated that weeds do $300,000,000 worth of damage to the agricultural interests per annum. In Canada also the yield of field crops is enormously reduced from this cause. It is hardly necessary to refer to a bulletin issued by the Seed Branch at Ottawa on "Weeds and Weed Seeds" that gives a list of nearly three hundred varieties known to this country, to realize that weeds lower the yield, depreciate the quality and value of crops, and add to the cost of production. They rob the soil of plant food and moisture; they crowd out more useful plants, being harder and generally more prolific, and they attract injurious insects and harbour fungus diseases. They are spread from district to district through transportation facilities by land and water, through impure seed; the wind carries them long distances and animals distribute them through their excrement and from judgement in their coats. Every province has adopted legislation looking for the suppression of noxious weeds, and this year an instruction train was operated through the three prairie provinces to give information to farmers regarding the weed problem. It might be mentioned the publication referred to gives a minute description of the majority of the weeds, with methods that should be followed for their eradication. It also states that no fewer than over 150 distinct species of weed seeds were found in samples of grain and seed submitted to the Ottawa Seed Branch for analysis in one year.

British Columbia's Efforts

The movement of shingles and copper from British Columbia to the Atlantic ports via the Panama Canal is continuing. Every week about ten million shingles are shipped, and a thousand tons of copper go monthly. Recently paper and pulp has been added to the list.

Amid the cheers of thousands of well-wishers lined along the Thames embankment, and the frantic thronging of ships' sirens, the aply-named Quest commanded by Sir Ernest Shackleton, started recently on the first leg of a 30,000-mile voyage of discovery in the uncharted seas of the frozen south.

Romance and science are bound up in this new adventure in the Polar regions. The journey will take Sir Ernest 30,000 miles in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, and in the uncharted seas of the South Pole. The explorers are making for the Enderby Quadrant, the Antarctic, south of South Africa. Some 90 years have passed since a ship was in these waters.

The Quest will also search for the lost Pacific island of Tunkai, mentioned in missionary history and native legend, but never seen; it will search also for secret seas, whose existence is believed but not proved.

The ship is barely 200 tons net. Its length is 111 feet, and depth 12 feet. Its sides are a foot thick of oak, pine and fir, and its bows are sheathed with steel. A remarkable feature of the expedition will be the vessel's lack of crew—a crew, that is, distinct from the scientific work. The staff of the expedition will manage the ship.

The British Admiralty has lent an oceanographical equipment, and the air ministry has lent two officers who will fly kite and balloon work. Sounding platforms have been built on the vessel, which will enable the scientific staff to sound the ocean to a depth of six miles, half-a-mile more than ever has been done before.

Arrangements have been made so that the vessel can steam for 10,000 miles without refueling. A scaplane is housed on a special deck, and two moving picture men are among the staff. The Quest will have on board stores for two years.

Good Fishing In Northern Lakes

Fishermen at Lesser Slave Lake and Lac La Biche Are Doing Well

Up to August 13th 115,000 pounds of fish of all descriptions had been taken from the waters of Lac La Biche. Of this amount 80,000 pounds represented the white fish catch, the balance being pickerel, pike, and other varieties of the coarser fish. Fishing in Lac Biche commenced on July 15th, and reports from the fishermen show that they consider this year's operations will double the output of last year. The quality of the fish is excellent, and everyone in the Lac La Biche fishing industry is wearing a broad smile. Over 25 fishermen, holding commercial licenses, are employed in removing the finny inhabitants from the depths.

Fish are plentiful on the Lesser Slave also, and up to August 14th over fifteen cars left the lake ports for outside points. Taken all round, the fishing is better this year, and in addition to the whitefish a very heavy catch of pickerel is reported up to the end of last week, from the east end of the lake.

Last year the total pickerel caught for the entire season amounted to 56,000 pounds, but in the present year the catch has already totalled 46,000 pounds and there is still a clear month and a half of fishing. The catch in the eastern end of the lake is the best for many years, but the western section is apparently devoid of fish. More pickerel than usual have been caught.

Well over 150 fishermen are employed on the Lesser Slave in commercial fishing, the catch up to August 13th being approximately 350,000 pounds of all varieties, 300,000 pounds of fish from the Lesser Slave is being shipped out in excellent condition the majority of the product finding a market in Chicago, where Alberta whitefish is exceedingly popular.—Edmonton Bulletin.

The Totems At Alert Bay

Bear Totem Pole,

Tradition has been very busy with the thought of him giving The Potlatch that anguished the Nimpkish. The story of the Thunder-Bird that lets most light on the Indian character of other days is a gruesome tale of treachery on the part of the Alutians toward their ancient foe the Nimpkish.

The Nimpkish folk were invited to a "Potlatch" and burying the hatchet, they came. Only to be murdered one at a time as they wriggled through the Thunder Bird's beak to the feast-hall. This entrance was so narrow and the blow from within so swift and unexpected that not even a sound escaped to warn the men waiting outside. Thus, tradition says, "Was done to death every Nimpkish who came to the feast."

Next in importance to the Thunder Bird comes The Bear, franked and sporty, carrying between powerful paws the "copper" symbol of Chieftainship among the Indians to this day.

The chief whom the Bear symbolizes was evidently a hunter—preeminently of bears. And so cleverly did he hunt and study Bruin's habits that in time he himself came to have something of the nature of the animal he hunted. The whole make-up of "The Bear" bespeaks gentility and good-humor. No one could think of him giving The Potlatch that anguished the Nimpkish. As a true sport, every visitor to Alert Bay will acknowledge that "The Whale" runs "The Bear" a close second.

And as you look at the harpoon conceivd of the artist astride the giant sulphur-bottom you know that wherever may have been the fault of this scion of the house of Sitwah "cowardice" was not one of them. Of all the steeds of fancy or ambition can one be imagined that supplies more sport for the money than "The Whale" over an open course? Yet your Coastal Indian of these parts was evidently not afraid to ride.

Eloquent indeed is the simple white design which sparing as wholly unnecessary the written word, mounts guard over the time-worn mound in the graveyard.

To discover the remaining interesting Totems in the Alert Bay gallery it is desirable that yourself make the trip. Otherwise to you is also denied the least pleasure experienced by the visitor to these parts of piecing together the various "designs" shown in the Totems and making them into the living chapters of the life that at one time had its being here in this part of our Canada.

Mackay, of Saskatoon, is a brother. The report that wild ducks banded near Lindsay, Ont., last year had been shot so far south as the Island of Trinidad, recalls that two ducks were shot in Alberta in 1920 that had been banded in New York State, proving that these birds travel great distances along their air trails.

Efforts of workers in Russia to help famine sufferers are hindered by the fact that they themselves are weakened, through lack of proper food. Famine is now paralyzing the strong and weak alike, and many men for whom employment is available, are too enfeebled to do anything requiring physical exertion.

When you are troubled with diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cramps and pains in the stomach, cholera, cholera morbus, summer complaint, bloody fluxes, or any looseness of the bowels be sure and obtain a bottle of "Dr. Fowler's" and see how quickly it gives you relief. This wonderful remedy has been on the market for the past 76 years and we wish to warn you against accepting a substitute which may be dangerous to your health.

Mr. Samuel Buckler, Tatamagouche, N.S., writes: "While visiting in Western Canada I had a severe attack of diarrhoea. 'After trying many proprietary medicines I got no relief but kept getting worse. I was advised to take Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and I lost no time in doing so. I cannot hesitate in recommending it most highly, for when I had not yet taken half the bottle I was relieved. I must say that if 'Dr. Fowler's' is given on a fair trial it will show its good qualities."

Live Stock Industry

Want Action Taken to Secure Market in U.S.

C. W. Peterson, western editor and rancher, suggests the formation of a Canadian pool consisting of government representatives, bankers, breeders, and capitalists to form an effective line of defence in view of the present condition of the live stock industry in Western Canada. He urged that immediate diplomatic negotiations be opened with the United States to procure for Canada free entry for animals and animal products, pleading that even an unlimited overseas market could not be compared with free access to the Chicago market. He believed that if the situation were placed before the Canadian public and they were appealed to there would be no trouble in subscribing $100,000,000 for the pool.

A Woman Homesteader

City Girl Makes a Success of Farming in Western Canada

Another name added to the list of women who are successfully operating farms in Western Canada that of May V. Hazlett, an English girl who for four years has lived alone on a homestead in the Touchwood Hills, and made it pay. Her brother, who homesteaded the land, was killed in the Canadian forces at Vimy Ridge, and Miss Hazlett, who was working as a stenographer, and tired of the eternal pounding, determined to go contrary to the advice to sell the farm and though she had never lived in the country, decided to operate it herself. Success has attended her efforts and she now owns several head of horses, a fine bunch of cattle, and has more than one hundred acres under cultivation. She is again reversing the order of things as having built a Western home she is returning to England to marry her fiancé and bring him out to the Saskatchewan farm. She is an ardent advocate of homesteads for women.

Probably the two most awkward things in the world are a woman throwing a stone and a bachelor holding a baby.

Pain In The Loins Driven Out Quickly

Stake Oil Claims On Arctic Circle

Oil Claims Extend from Fort Norman to the Rim of the Arctic. Oil claims have been staked along the Mackenzie River right up to the Arctic Circle. The staking extends from a point several miles south of Fort Norman, which is 1,500 miles north of Edmonton, to another point within some fifty miles of Good Hope, a post just sixteen miles south of the Arctic Circle. The total distance of the oil staking along the Mackenzie River in this territory is now approximately 150 miles though not continued over this entire length.

PAINFUL NEURALGIA TORTURING SCIATICA

Both Come From The Same Cause—Thin, Watery Blood

Most people think of neuralgia as a pain in the head or face, but neuralgia may affect any nerve in the body. Different names are given to it when it affects different nerves. This neuralgia of the sciatic nerve is called sciatica, but the character of the pain is the same as the disease are the same. The pain in neuralgia is caused by starved nerves. The blood which carries nourishment to the nerves has become thin and impure and no longer does so. With hot applications, but real relief from the trouble comes by enriching and purifying the blood. For this purpose Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are strongly recommended. These pills make new, rich blood and thus act as a most effective nerve tonic. If you are suffering from this most dreaded of troubles, or any form of nerve trouble, give these pills a fair trial, and note the ease and comfort that follows their use.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Swedan Wants Wheat

A letter has been received by the Vancouver Board of Trade from a Stockholm Broker inquiring into the possibility of Canada exporting wheat to Sweden and it is quite possible that some wheat which is being shipped to Europe from this port via the Panama Canal will find a market there.

The Family Physician.—The good doctor is always worth his fee. But it is not always possible to get a doctor just when you want him. In such cases, common sense suggests the use of reliable home remedies, such as Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which is wonderfully effective in easing inflammatory pains and in healing cuts, scratches, bruises and sprains. The presence of this remedy in the family medicine chest saves many a fee.

Alberta Red Clover

Red clover yielding at the rate of ten to six tons per acre has been harvested at the University farm, Edmonton. The clover is known as Atlaswede, a new variety originated at the farm. It stood from thirty to thirty-six inches high, has a very fine stem and makes excellent fodder.

American Capital Interested

Paul O'Leary, representing a party of Central American capitalists, was in Calgary recently to investigate the possibilities of wheat growing on a large scale in the Canadian West. It is intended to operate thirty thousand acres.

A Cape Coat For Early Fall Days

By Marie Belmont.

The popularity of the cape is not likely to pass with the summer months. Its pleasing qualities are so much appreciated that there will be many interpretations of it for fall wear. This delightful coat, cut from a heavy silk crepe in a rich shade of brown, is designed with a spreading cape. It is lined with gold, which is revealed when the cape is flung backwards. The sleeves are cut wide at the wrist and are trimmed with beaver. This is also used for the crush collar that is set rather high about the neck. A brown velvet hat with small flowers made of golden ribbon completes the costume.

Many Ribbons adorn the stock shown by F. Collicut at Toronto.

At the Canadian National Exhibition held at Toronto, during this week, Mr. Frank Collicut's string of pure-bred Herefords stepped out to show the class of stock being raised on the Willow Springs ranch at Crossfield, Alta., they were warrant taking in such a large territory, from the number of prizes they carried off. Mr. Collicut need well be proud of the success of his stock for they were certainly being shown against real classy stock, brought together from all over the Dominion and raised by all prominent breeders of Hereford cattle. It is claimed that the showing of the "white faces" this year has never been equalled in the history of the fair, both numbers and quality exceeded by a good margin anything previously assembled in Ontario, if not in the whole Dominion.

The following are some of the prize winners from the Collicut ranch: Two-year old bull, 1st prize; senior yearling bull, grand champion and first prize; junior bull calf, first and second prize; two-year-old heifer, first prize; senior yearling heifer, third prize; senior heifer calf, third and fourth prize; and junior heifer calf, third and fourth prize.
